CHICAGO FIRM SEES DAKOTAS IN PROSPERITY

Service Gives North Dakota Income at 68 Per Cent Over That of Last Year

GAINS ARE DETAILED

Central Part of State Is Given $21,000,000 Income Increase Over Last Year

"Prosperity returns to the Dakotas" is the heading of an analysis of the situation in two states made by the Howard-Morsehouse Forecasts service of Chicago, Illinois, received by The Tribune today.

North Dakota farmers, according to his estimate, will have a gain in income of 68 percent over last year. It is estimated the cash income will be $208,000,000 as against $123,500,000 in the past year and $176,000,000 in the crop year 1922-23.

South Dakota also will gain, but the increase of income over last year is estimated at but 12 percent in that state. The income is estimated at $210,000,000 as against $187,000,000 the previous year.

"Cattle men will not share in the enormous gains now apparent, except as they have engaged in farming on the side," says the report. "The cattle ranges of both Dakotas, however, have passed the bottom of depression and are in better shape than most of the cattle country."

The outlook in the Dakotas is much stronger than forecast six weeks ago. It is said, declaring that "North Dakota will have over a third more wheat than forecast July 1. This year is one of the largest crops the state has ever grown and worth over twice as much as that of 1923."

Taking the North Dakota situation by districts, the Howard-Morsehouse Service gives gross sales of central North Dakota, including Burleigh, Emmets, Logan, McIntosh, Kidder, Stutsman, Foster, Eddy, Wells, Sheridan and McLean counties as $21,000,000, a gain of 68 percent.

Two districts on the Missouri Slope are given gross sales of $31,000,000, a gain in the southwestern part of 50 percent and the northern part of the Slope of 62 percent. Gains in the Red River Valley are given from 64 to 77 percent over last year, while Northwest North Dakota is shown gaining 73 percent in income.

Showing differences between the two states, the service says:

"Wheat usually accounts for more than half of North Dakota farmers' income. In South Dakota 15 to 20 percent."

"Flax growing has increased rapidly in the past two years as it yields about as well as wheat and has been bringing twice the prevailing prices for that grain."

"Cattle are about holding their own in the Dakotas. They are second only to hogs in North Dakota, but are outranked by wheat, dairy products and flax in North Dakota."

"Hogs are the leading cash product of South Dakota. Corn and hogs together account for nearly 40 percent of the state's farm income. They are on the increase in North Dakota though of minor significance except in the southeast corner."

DELEGATES TO SHOW NAMED

Governor Nestos has named delegates from North Dakota to the annual National Dairy Exposition, at Milwaukee, September 27 to October 4, as follows: O. K. Spies, Burlington; G. W. WHERE TAXES CAN BE SAVED

Within the next few weeks, the new city budget will be made up and every taxpayer—and what citizen of Bismarck is not a taxpayer, directly or indirectly—should insist upon a material retrenchment during the next fiscal year. Such a step is absolutely necessary and must not be postponed.

One of the first items upon which a great saving without impairment of the public service is the expenditure for a city engineer. A stated salary should be fixed in the budget and all fees earned through the use of city property or time should be turned back into the city treasury—as is done in some of the cities of North Dakota.

Recently The Tribune sent a questionnaire to several cities of the state covering the item of city engineering expense. Some of the letters received show what economies have been effected in some cities. Minot especially is a shining example.

In May 1923 in Minot, the offices of City Engineer and Superintendent of Water Works were combined for the sake of economy. Each of the departments pays the City Engineer $1,500 per year, a total of $3,000. Bismarck being smaller in population than Minot and its property valuation less, should secure a man at this figure for the two positions or even less. With no new public work in sight, the city engineer could also supervise the street cleaning department doing away with the expense of a man and automobile.

Kara A. Dickinson, city auditor of Minot, in her letter to The Tribune states that there never has been any extra compensation paid for supervising any special public work such as waterworks, paving, etc., since she has known anything about the office. Minot has had considerable paving, a new waterworks system, an elaborate park system and a most extensive sewage disposal plant.

In Fargo, the largest city in the state, the City Engineer is paid a salary of $3,600 a year and is required to give all his time to the city and receives no other fees of any kind. If he performs some outside service, such as privately surveying lots, he pays into the City Treasury any fees so received. He receives no additional compensation in a case involving special assessment work. Doubtless Bismarck, a city smaller in population and taxable wealth, could secure an engineer at much less unless the water works department utilized his services also.

Grand Forks which has some 7,000 more people than Bismarck pays its city engineer $2,400 a year, giving what office assistance is necessary.

Dickinson pays one dollar an hour to its city engineer while actually engaged in work for the city.

Valley City has somewhat the same arrangement as Bismarck paying its city engineer $50 a month and in addition 5% on paving, sewer and water contracts.

In Bismarck an office is furnished the city engineer free of charge, heat, light, telephone and power for blue-print machine. The city engineer is also county surveyor and some of his time is given to the county and much of his time to work in other cities of the state. The arrangement has been a costly one for the taxpayers of Bismarck and the city commission should end the present arrangement speedily. By combining the positions of city engineer and superintendent of the water works system, a real saving can be effected. If this step were taken, the city engineer could if not bothered with the county work and outside jobs direct the street force, effecting an additional saving there.

Part time arrangements are costly in private as well as public business. It would be better for Bismarck to have a full time auditor and assessor combined and an accountant on full time to handle the finances of the water department.

The whole field is a most profitable one for the study of the commissioners and the voters of the city should bring pressure to bear in effecting these economies which will mean a smaller tax bill for Bismarck.

Now is the time to cease spending and begin practicing thrift in the administration of city affairs.

LABOR BOARD HEARS DISPUTE OF ENGINEMEN

Goes Ahead Despite the Refusal of General Brotherhood Chairman to Appear

T A K E JURISDICTION Board to Develop Case of the Brotherhoods Through Its Own Methods

Chicago, Sept. 8.—The continued case of the engine service brotherhoods versus the western managers' conference committee, the latter authorized to represent nearly all railroads west of Chicago, was heard today by the United States Railroad Labor Board. Out of this case grew the situation by reason of which counsel designated by the Department of Justice to represent the board is preparing action to test in a federal court the authority of the board to require testimony.

Some 50 general chairmen and two grand officers of the brotherhoods refused to appear and testify, denying the jurisdiction of the board. The chairman of the board has indicated that in the absence of the representatives of the brotherhoods, the board itself, by research and cross-examination, developed the employees' side.

The board assumed jurisdiction when the managers' committee reported failure of concerted negotiations with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen. The latter had asked the committee representing the railroad management for wage increases on the basis of the settlement on the New York Central, approximating five percent. The committee said the increase could be granted only in exchange for certain modification of rules affecting wages and working conditions, which the employees' representatives said were not acceptable.

Members of the board said the dispute was a complicated one requiring careful study. Representatives of the employees in refusing to place their case before the board have held that their appearance be construed as recognition of the propriety of the assumption of jurisdiction.

Mr. Brewster, the Republican candidate, in his campaign made no mention of the Klan but emphasized national issues and his support of President Coolidge.

DAVIS CARRIES HIS BATTLE TO DENVER TODAY

Candidate for the Presidency En Route After His Speech in Omaha

GIVES FARM VIEWS

Candidate Tells What He Believes Would be of Aid to Agriculture

Aboard the Davis Special Train, en route to Denver, Sept. 8.—(By the A. P.)—John W. Davis, carried his fight for the Presidency into Colorado today with the expressed determination to press even more vigorously his assault on the Republican party and its record of administration of government.

His spokesmen say that in his Denver address on Thursday night, the only formal one he plans to make in Colorado, he will renew his attack upon Saturday night in Omaha, on what he interprets from the Lincoln address of Charles G. Dawes, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, as the administration position that there should be a suspension of reclamation project as a means of aiding agriculture to recover from the result of over production.

Reclamation—a big question in the west—will be one of the three main subjects which Mr. Davis will treat in his address. The others are conservation and irrigation.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 8.—John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, outlined his views on agricultural relief before a large audience here Saturday night.

A readjustment and lowering of rail and water freight rates; tariff and tax reform, government aid in stimulating the co-operative marketing movement and in establishing an export marketing commission, constituted the cardinal points in a farm relief program presented here by Mr. Davis.

In offering this platform before an audience in the city auditorium, the Democratic presidential nominee, as he characterized the discrimination against the farmer in favor of the manufacturer and for the failure to co-operate fully in the restoration of economic conditions abroad so as to furnish a market for American farm products.

In this connection, Mr. Davis expressed his resentment at "the belated attempts" of the administration to capitalize the possibilities in the Dawes reparation settlement "as a political asset." He declared that if Americans had in fact "by their official presence" aid in this settlement, it laid "a crushing burden of blame and responsibility on the shoulders of those who for five long years prevented any form of American participation" in solving the reparations problems.

BATTLE FRONT SOON TO REACH TO 750 MILES

General Chang Tso-Lin, War Lord of Manchuria, Fights Peking Government

NO DECISIVE BATTLE

Four-Day Battle Around Shanghai Is Without Result—Sun Yat Sen May Get In

Shanghai, (11 p. m.) Sept. 8.—Artillery and rifle fire, growing stronger minute by minute, was heard late tonight in the Joesfield district on the western outskirts of the city. No official indication as to the source of the firing was available.

It was suggested that the attacking Kalgano forces which have been held at Hwangtu on the Shanghai-Nanking railroad for nearly a week by the soldiers of Lu Wung-Huang might have left the railroad and sent a force down the waterway from Soochow, in Junka and barges.

No Decisive Battle

Although the invading army of Chi-Shieh-Yuan, military governor of Kiangsu province, has been battling for four days against the defending forces of Gen. Lu Wung-Hsiang, military governor of Chekiang province, for possession of Shanghai, no decisive battle has been fought.

But an official permission of the Peking government to the invading forces of the Kiangsu government to proceed announced yesterday, was said to have prompted the move on the part of General Chang Tso-Lin, an ally of General Lu. Wu-Pei-Fu commands the military forces of the Peking government.

Order Against Lu

The basis of the order against Lu from Peking was that he had revolted and rallied around him outlawed elements of the population and that Chi had stood for the greatest crimes which cannot be tolerated under the laws of the Chinese nation.

From South China reports were received that Dr. Sun Yat Sen was preparing to lend military support to his friend, Lu, in defending Shanghai. Entrance of the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso-Lin, into the fray against the Peking government, opens anew a fight for the control of the machinery of Chinese government which has been in the hands of Wu-Pei-Fu and his associates for many months.

Awaiting Opportunity

Stung by humiliating defeat at the hands of Wu-Pei-Fu two years ago when he attempted to invade Chihli province, in which Peking is located, Chang is known to have been awaiting the present opportunity to engage his old rival in battle again. The situation is favorable to Chang, as some of Wu's forces may be dispatched to the Shanghai section to aid the invading forces. This would leave the country around Peking without its normal military strength, to offer a defense against the troops from Manchuria.

CLAIM ADVANCES

Shanghai, (5 p. m.) Sept. 8.—Advances on all fronts, but particularly west of Taihu (Lake) and near Kiating, in the Lihue sector, were claimed tonight at the Lungsha headquarters of the Chekiang troops holding back the Kiangsu advance on Shanghai.

The second army, under command of General Chen Yao-San, including the Fourth division and part of the Tenth division of the Chekiang troops, as well as some forces from Fukien province, south of Chekiang has been fighting on the west side of Taihu since yesterday, attacking northward from Changshu, about 15 miles south of the provincial border.

The objective of this attack is the city of Changchow, on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, and the grand canal. Capture of that city would paralyze the Peking government.

P.)—Letters received in response to Senator LaFollette's radio address on Labor Day, a statement issued today by his headquarters, indicate that the independent ticket is drawing strength about evenly from the Republican and Democratic ranks. LABOR BOARD HEARS DISPUTE OF ENGINEERS

Goes Ahead Despite the Refusal of General Brotherhood Chairman to Appear

TAKE JURISDICTION

Board to Develop Case of the Brotherhoods Through Its Own Methods

Chicago, Sept. 8.—The continued case of the engine service brotherhoods versus the western managers' conference committee, the latter authorized to represent nearly all railroads west of Chicago, was heard today by the United States Railroad Labor Board. Out of this case grew the situation by reason of which counsel designated by the Department of Justice to represent the board is preparing action to test in a federal court the authority of the board to require testimony.

Some 90 general chairmen and two grand officers of the brotherhoods refused to appear and testify, denying the jurisdiction of the board. The chairman of the board has indicated that in the absence of the representatives of the brotherhoods, the board itself, by research and cross-examination, developed the employees' side.

The board assumed jurisdiction when the managers' committee reported failure of concerted negotiations with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers. The latter had asked the committee representing the railroad management for wage increases on the basis of the recommendation of the New York Central, approximating five percent. The committee said the increase could be granted only in exchange for certain modification of rules affecting wages and working conditions, which the employees' representatives said were not acceptable.

Members of the board said the dispute was a complicated one requiring careful study. Representatives of the employees in refusing to place their case before the board have held that their appearance be construed as an admission of the propriety of the assumption of jurisdiction.

BIG PROBLEMS ON CALENDAR OF PRESIDENT

Coolidge, with Speaking Engagements Clear, Studies Sugar, Other Questions

Washington, Sept. 8.—His speaking calendar cleared for two weeks ahead, President Coolidge was prepared today to tackle some pending government problems and to survey the reaction to his two speeches of last week.

Political interests at the White House centered on the outcome of the election schedule for this week, including that in Maine today. Important among pending matters before the President is the report of the tariff commission on the proposed reduction in the sugar duties and appointment of a member of the Interstate Commerce commission, the term of Commissioner Lewis expiring this month.

The army world fliers took off from the Airport here today at 12:02:30 p. m., beginning the series of jumps that will complete at Seattle the circumnavigation of the world by air. Weather conditions were good. They expected to arrive at Mitchell Field at 3 p. m.

LARGEST VOTE IN HISTORY SEEN TODAY IN ELECTION IN MAINE

Portland, Maine, Sept. 8.—The largest vote in the history of Maine is expected to be cast in today's biennial state election in which the contest for Governor, waged largely on the Ku Klux Klan issue, overshadowed all other considerations.

Officers of the Democratic state committee today predicted that William R. Pattangall, former state Attorney-General and Democratic candidate for Governor, would carry off a plurality of 15,000 to 30,000. Chairman George L. Emery of the Republican state committee, on the other hand, predicted for Mr. Brewster a victory of from $25,000 to 40,000 votes. Mr. Pattangall in his campaign denounced the Klan. Mr. Brewster, the Republican candidate, in his campaign, made no mention of the Klan but emphasized national issues and his support of President Coolidge.

Legion Headquarters Is Moved to St. Paul Preparing For Convention

Minneapolis, Sept. 8.—Fifty federal prohibition agents, coming from different points in Minnesota and other Northwest states, gathered here today for an avowed "clean-up" of bootleggers before the opening of the national American Legion convention in St. Paul next week.

A. C. Townsend, divisional prohibition chief, will direct the enforcement activities of the general prohibition agents and John Kruse, group enforcement chief, will be in charge of the Minnesota agents.

"Every effort will be made to 'clean up' the bootleggers within the next week," Mr. Townsend said. "Our men will be on duty day and night. Hotel proprietors will be advised that they will be held responsible for liquor law violations in their places and railroad and express companies will be asked to cooperate in stopping liquor shipments into the Twin Cities."

MOVE HEADQUARTERS

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—National headquarters of the American Legion was moved temporarily to St. Paul today as final preparations got under way for the encampment of the Legion here next week.

Russell Creviston, national adjutant and 30 members of the headquarters of the staff, opened convention offices in the Armory, a short distance from the Auditorium, where the five-day convention will open Monday.

Downtown St. Paul is rapidly donning its decorative attire and the local committee in charge declared everything will be in readiness for the convention before the end of the week.

DAVIS CARRIES HIS BATTLE TO DENVER TODAY

Candidate for the Presidency En Route After His Speech in Omaha

GIVES FARM VIEWS

Candidate Tells What He Believes Would be of Aid to Agriculture

Aboard the Davis Special Train, en route to Denver, Sept. 8.—(By the A. P.)—John W. Davis carried his fight for the Presidency into Colorado today with the expressed determination to press even more vigorously his assault on the Republican party and its record of administration of government.

His spokesmen say that in his Denver address on Thursday night, the only formal one he plans to make in Colorado, he will renew his attack begun Saturday night in Omaha, on what he interprets from the Lincoln address of Charles G. Dawes, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, as the administration position that there should be a suspension of reclamation project as a means of aiding agriculture to recover from the result of over-production.

Reclamation—a big question in the west—will be one of the three main subjects which Mr. Davis will treat in his address. The others are conservation and irrigation.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 8.—John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, outlined his views on agricultural relief before a large audience here Saturday night.

A readjustment and lowering of rail and water freight rates; tariff and tax reform, government aid in stimulating the co-operative marketing movement and in establishing an export marketing commission, constituted the cardinal points in a farm relief program presented here by Mr. Davis.

In offering this platform before an audience in the city auditorium, the Democratic presidential nominee, as sailed the Republican party for what he characterized as the discrimination against the farmer in favor of the manufacturer and for the failure to co-operate fully in the restoration of economic conditions abroad so as to furnish a market for American farm products.

In this connection, Mr. Davis expressed his resentment at "the belated attempts" of the administration to capitalize the possibilities in the Dawes reclamation settlement "as a political asset." He declared that if Americans had in fact "by their unofficial presence" aid in this settlement, it laid "a crushing burden of blame and responsibility on the shoulders of those who for five long years prevented any form of American participation" in solving the reclamation problems.

JUDGE CAVERLY DECIDES FATE OF MURDERERS

Scratched Out on Rough Note-Paper, Is Given to Stenographer to Transcribe

JUDGE GOES TO CHURCH

Bodyguard of Policeman Is Provided for Caverly as Time of Sentence Nears

Chicago, Sept. 8.—The fate of Nathan F. Leopold and Richard Loeb, sons of old Chicago millionaire families who kidnapped and murdered Robert Franks last May 21, has been sealed.

Judge John R. Caverly has completed the decision he will render today after tomorrow as the last act of his connection with the criminal court of Cook county. Upon it rests whether the youths shall die upon the gallows or grow into manhood in the Illinois state penitentiary to which counsel pleaded that they be sent for life.

Three sheets of ruled Manila paper containing approximately 1,000 words is the decision of Judge Caverly, written yesterday after, under escort of a police guard, he had attended church.

Using an ordinary lead pencil and a few sheets of paper, Judge Caverly sat at the desk in his library and wrote out the document which will go down, according to legal men, as one of the important decisions of modern criminal jurisprudence. Today the rough draft will be turned over to a stenographer, sworn to secrecy, to be typewritten.

The world will know the decision soon after 9:30 o'clock central daylight savings time Wednesday morning. In the Cook county jail Loeb and Leopold spent Sunday listening to an entertainment by several professionals. It was the last Sunday they will spend in their old cells. By next Sunday they will be either in death cells or awaiting removal to Joliet penitentiary.

BATTLE FRONT SOON TO REACH TO 750 MILES

General Chang Tso-Lin, War Lord of Manchuria, Fights Peking Government

NO DECISIVE BATTLE

Four-Day Battle Around Shanghai Is Without Result—Sun Yat Sen May Get In

Shanghai, (11 p. m.) Sept. 8.—Artillery and rifle fire, growing stronger minute by minute, was heard late tonight in the Jesso-field district on the western outskirts of the city. No official indication as to the source of the firing was available.

It was suggested that the attacking Kiangsu forces which have been held at Hwangtu on the Shanghai-Nanking railroad for nearly a week by the soldiers of Lu Wung-Hsiang might have left the railroad and sent a force down the waterway from Soochow, in Junks and barges.

Shanghai, China, Sept. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, war lord of Manchuria, were in the field today sweeping down from Manchuria toward Peking against the forces of General Wu Pei-Fu, his old military rival, to create a new front in China's civil war, which has been confined to fighting west and south of Shanghai, between Shanghai and Peking, for the possession of the gateway city.

The latest military gesture in China's internal complications, will make the territory between Mukden, principal city of Manchuria, and Peking, in Chihli province, an armed camp, 1,000 miles away from the Shanghai line of warfare.

Out of a series of reports received here today there was an indication that military orders issued from Peking showed that activities were under way in provinces dividing the separated fields of battle and before many hours the territory between Shanghai and Peking would be a connected line of conflict, 750 miles in length.

No Decisive Battle

Although the military governor of Kiangsu province, has been battling for four days against the defending forces of Gen. Lu Wung-Hsiang, military governor of Chekiang province, for possession of Shanghai, no decisive battle has been fought.

Belated official permission of the Peking government to the invading forces of the Kiangsu government to proceed announced yesterday, was said to have prompted the move on the part of General Chang Tso-Lin, an ally of General Lu. Wu-Pei-Fu commands the military forces of the Peking government.

Order Against Lu

The basis of the order against Lu, however, was that he had revolted and rallied around him outlawed elements of the population and that Chi had stood for the greatest crimes which cannot be tolerated under the laws of the Chinese nation.

From South China reports were received that Dr. Sun Yat Sen was preparing to lend military support to his friend, Lu, in defending Shanghai. Entrance of the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso-Lin, into the fray against the Peking government, opens anew a fight for the control of the machinery of Chinese government which has been in the hands of Wu-Pei-Fu and his associates for many months.

Awaiting Opportunity

Stung by humiliating defeat at the hands of Wu-Pei-Fu two years ago when he attempted to invade Chihli province, in which Peking is located, Chang is known to have been awaiting the present opportunity to engage his old rival in battle again. The situation is favorable to Chang, as some of Wu's forces may be dispatched to the Shanghai section to aid the invading forces. This would leave the country around Peking without its normal military strength, to offer a defense against the troops from Manchuria.

CLAIM ADVANCES

Shanghai, (5 p. m.) Sept. 8.—Advances on all fronts, but particularly west of Taihu (Lake) and near Kiating, in the Lihuo sector, were claimed tonight at the Lungwha headquarters of the Chekiang troops holding back the Kiangsu advance on Shanghai.

The second army, under command of General Chen Yao-San, including the Fourth division and part of the Tenth division of the Chekiang troops, as well as some forces from Fukien province, south of Chekiang has been fighting on the west side of Taihu since yesterday, attacking northward from Changshu, about 15 miles south of the provincial border.

The objective of this attack is the city of Changchow, on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, and the grand canal. Capture of that city would put the Kiangsu forces in a position to advance on Shanghai.

PROPOSAL FOR PEACE ADOPTED BY ASSEMBLY

Geneva Meeting Votes Unanimously to Support Resolution of Two Powers

NOTABLE EVENTS

Geneva, Sept. 6.—A peace resolution drawn up by the French and British delegations was adopted unanimously by the assembly of the League of Nations this afternoon.

TAKE GREAT STEPS

Geneva, Sept. 6.—Great events which in League of Nations circles it is firmly believed are destined to affect the future of the world, including the people of the United States, occurred at yesterday's session of the assembly of the League.

France joined Great Britain in pledging support for the principle of compulsory arbitration, and, through her premier, M. Herriot, in removing the doubts of those who feared that France would hesitate to weaken her force as a great continental military power.

M. Herriot announced unequivocally that France favors an international conference on disarmament. In a calm, masterly oration, like that Premier MacDonald, of Great Britain, delivered, before the assembly Thursday, M. Herriot made the men and women present sit in rigid attention.

The premier told the world through the assembly that henceforth that nation which refused to submit disputes to arbitration would be stigmatized as an aggressor nation.

Seek American Stand

Today the one supreme topic for speculation among the delegates generally was what the reaction in the last two days in the assembly would have on the United States. Next to definite commitments to the policy of arbitration, one thing stands out clearly—that is, that all Europe, led by Great Britain and France, now has proclaimed that it is through the League of Nations and no other body the peace of the world must be solidified. France, like Great Britain, has made it clear that the next disarmament conference must be convoked by the League of Nations, because it is considered the only body fitted and properly equipped to carry through such a conference.

Cook By Wire Instead of by Fire

FAMOUS FILM COMES HERE

"Covered Wagon," Epic of West, to be Shown

A magnificent epic of the early west is James Cruze's latest Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon," which will be the feature at the Eltinge beginning Monday next. This is a picturization of Emerson Hough's new novel of the same name, and it is said to be one of the greatest photoplays ever seen on the screen.

The features embraced in this story are many and varied and include among others, the start of 350 covered wagons from Westport Landing (now Kansas City), in 1846. The terrors of fording freshet rivers, prairie fires and the like are depicted with great realism. A buffalo hunt is one of the most exciting scenes. Old Fort Bridger with a night attack and fight by day with Indians, are shown. The dividing of the trails to Oregon and California at old Fort Hall, a touch of the gold fever in California, magnificent mountain shots and a culmination of the romance with the establishment of one of the first homesteads in Oregon—these are all incidents in a picture that bristles with big scenes.

Such historical characters as Kit Carson, Jim Bridger and Bill Jackson, scouts and typical western characters, are portrayed in the Paramount screen version of the novel, which is conceded to be one of the most notable literary achievements of the present decade.

The various roles are in the hands of well known screen players. The leading man is J. Warren Kerrigan, and the leading woman is Lois Wilson. Alan Hale is the villain. Others in the cast include Tully Marshall, Ethel Wales, Charles Ogle and John Fox. Jack Cunningham adapted the novel to the screen.

It gives Willys-Knight an improvement that is considered a mark of supremacy in one of the highest priced foreign cars.

Appearance—Performance—Power! And the sleeve-valve engine that improves with use! Now, the very last word in smoothness—velvety action at all speeds—elimination of the motor vibration that gives so many automobile owners nerve fag.

A new pleasure in driving results, particularly in the closed models now so popular. Willys-Knight increases both its efficiency and its appeal.

Under the exactions of most discriminating drivers, the Lanchester Balancer has proved its merit. It has earned the commendation of leading engineers. In Willys-Knight it sets a new standard for the American market.

The Willys-Knight with Lanchester Balancer is ready for inspection and demonstration. Try it at all speeds. You will recognize its superiority.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

THE REACTIONARY PROPOSAL

President Coolidge, usually calm and impassive, can strike out forcefully in defense of a principle or in the advocacy of a cause he believes is right. In an even-tempered, common sense manner, which he deems so important in the conduct of government, the President did this in his Baltimore speech on the Constitution and the Supreme Court.

The proposals to abridge the powers of the court and destroy the Constitution are not new, but they are being emphasized more than ever in the LaFollette campaign. The proposals are called "progressive." President Coolidge very properly labels them "reactionary" and he proves his statement.

If there is no law there is anarchy. If there is no protection for the weak, for the minority, there is no justice. The Constitution of the United States was devised by men who had struggled for liberty; their intent was to preserve, and not to destroy, liberty. As the President said:

"Some people do not seem to understand fully the purpose of our constitutional restraints. They are for protecting the majority either in or out of the congress. They can protect themselves with their votes. We have adopted a written Constitution in order that the minority, even down to the most insignificant individual, might have their rights protected. So long as our Constitution remains in force, no majority, no matter how large, can deprive the individual of the right of life, liberty and property, or prohibit the free exercise of religion or the freedom of speech or of the press."

The interpretation of this basic document was placed in the hands of a high court by the founders of the Republic. There is now the proposal that the interpretation be placed in the hands of the majority in Congress, which in itself is a denial of the rights to the minority the Constitution guarantees. It is notable, as the President points out, that Congress, even when sitting in a judicial capacity as it has in deciding many cases, is inclined to a decision on partisan grounds, or upon what it may believe for the moment is the popular course. No more certain course for the breaking down of stability in government could be adopted than to break down the powers of the supreme court and the scope of the Constitution.

There are those who assault the supreme court as tyrannical, in the exercise of its duties of interpreting the Constitution. On this point Mr. Coolidge said:

"It is frequently charged that this tribunal is tyrannical. If the Constitution of the United States be tyrannical, if the rule that no one shall be convicted of a crime save by a jury of his peers; that no orders of nobility shall be granted; that slavery shall not be permitted to exist in any state or territory; that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law—if these and many other provisions made by the people be tyrannical, then the supreme court when it makes decisions in accordance with these principles of our fundamental law is tyrannical; otherwise it is exercising the power of government for the preservation of liberty."

The Constitution has raised certain barriers against hasty change. The change may come, deliberately and at the hands of the people. Stability of government, orderly processes, are provided, yet provision is made in the Constitution for such changes as the people desire by amendment. History is replete with the disasters which have occasioned efforts to make great fundamental changes overnight. War and revolution have had such an object, the same object which is behind the present attack upon the Constitution and the high court. This is not progress, but reaction. Mr. Coolidge said:

"At a time when all the world is seeking for the adjudication of differences between nations, not by war, but by reason, the suggestion that we should limit the jurisdiction of our domestic courts is reactionary in the highest degree. It would cast aside the progress of generations to begin again the contest for supremacy between executive and legislative. Which ever side has won in that struggle, the people have always lost."

Doubtless many of those who are behind the present attack are sincere. But it is equally true that many are insincere. A direct assault upon individual freedom could not succeed. That autocracy necessary to a revolution to a communistic or socialistic form of government cannot be attained under the present bulwark of the Constitution. There is real danger in these indirect attacks which may blind the people for the moment. The President was not crying "wolf" when he told the people in Baltimore that the time has come "for Americans to range themselves firmly, squarely and uncompromisingly behind American ideals."

DEATH

There is no death—only a change. All religions agree on this. And millions believe that the "life spark" itself does not perish—that it merely passes into some other manifestation of life, the same as electric current flows through wires.

How long can the life germ, or whatever you care to call it, survive? Wheat, found in the shriveled hands of an ancient Egyptian mummy, has been planted in modern times and sprouted into maturity after its thousands of years of sleep. And now, in Ottawa, Canada, they find a live clam that had been buried in solid masonry of a house foundation for 30 years. Dug out and placed in water, it "came to life." There is no death—only a sleep, a change.

THIEVES

Today's dream is tomorrow's accomplishment—just as surely now as when men first dreamed of flying with artificial wings.

A big scientific dream is transmission of electric power by radio. Collecting payment from consumers would be difficult, next to impossible. The cost will have to be paid by government from tax funds. One instance of many, that we are headed toward a socialistic condition whether we approve or not.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A PARTY?

(Grand Forks Herald)

The general theory of party government is that a political party is an organization of citizens who have a bond of union in common beliefs and purposes in matters of government. It is neither essential nor possible that all the members of a party shall think alike on all subjects, but if the party is really what it purports to be its members must be in harmony on those principles and policies which are held to be basic. They must be agreed on the main issues.

As party organization has developed there has been evolved certain machinery by means of which the sentiments and the will of the party may be crystallized, ascertained and formulated. It is manifestly impossible for all the members of a great national party to meet and discuss the issues which interest them, and in lieu of that a representative method has been devised. Sometimes through a series of conventions, and sometimes by the direct vote of party members, delegates to a national convention are elected. These delegates in the aggregate represent the entire membership of the party, and their decisions are taken to represent the will of the party itself. In pursuance of this plan, which is followed wherever the party system is known, the Republican or the United States elected delegates to represent them at a national convention held in Cleveland in June.

That convention, by a vote which was almost unanimous, adopted a declaration of principles setting forth the policy of the party on what were regarded as the important issues of the day, and nominated candidates for president and vice president to be supported at the coming election. The platform there adopted is the platform of the Republican party. The candidates there nominated are its candidates. There are no others. The party followed the only method that exists of determining its attitude on both sides of any candidates and this is the result.

Any member of the party is privileged to dissent from the decisions thus recorded as to either platform or candidates. He is privileged to support the party and its candidates as they are, or to organize a party of his own which will represent his views. But his dissent necessarily severs his relationship with the Republican party. If, in the development of local politics, he has been placed on the Republican ticket as a candidate for office, or if he holds a position as local or state committeeman, reason and honor demand that he resign. He is perfectly free, without criticism, to accept a nomination or an official position in the organization of whatever other party meets his views on public affairs, but he cannot rightfully continue a relationship that is false on its face. The man who cannot support the national candidates of the Republican party and subscribe in the main to its platform cannot honestly hold an official position in the Republican party.

Many appear to confuse party membership with citizenship. Citizenship is a permanent thing, in to which many are born, and which others assume as a lifetime privilege and obligation. Men may hold divergent views on almost every conceivable subject, and still be genuine and honorable citizens. But party membership is voluntary, and is based on the similarity of opinion of members on important subjects. If there is no similarity, the party is not a party. The individual may change his opinions. If his party does not change likewise, he is out of step, and it is his business to seek more congenial surroundings. The party itself may change, while the individual remains steadfast. Nevertheless the individual is still out of step with his party, and he cannot honorably remain in it.

These plain considerations of political honor are utterly ignored by certain candidates who have been officially chosen as candidates of the Republican party in this state, and by others who have been elected to official positions in the party organization. The complications are due to the inadequacy of our election laws, but men rightly constituted would not seek to take advantage of them.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

MISTER COON GIVES AN ORDER

"Hello, Mister Coon," said Nick. "I'm ever so glad to see you." Mister Ringtail Coon stepped into the shop of "Nancy, Nick & Company," followed by his two nephews, Cobby Coon and Cobby Coon, who had come to spend the fall and winter with their uncle and go to the Meadow Grove School.

"How'd do, Nick," said Mister Ringtail. "I came to see if you had any suits that would fit these little rascals. And if you haven't any that will fit, can you make them some to fit? I want my nephews to look as nice as possible."

"Certainly," said Nick politely. Mister Snip Snap, the fairman, came in then and said that they had some lovely things and that if Mister Coon would just step to the back of the store he would show them to him.

"You take the measure of Master Cobby and Master Coon, Nick," he said, and be sure you don't make any mistakes. Don't get everything crooked like Nancy did when she made a dress for little Miss Bunny. By the way, she was very happy to have any of our suits. Nick

"Sh - h - h!"

Mister Snip Snap suddenly. "This kind," grinned Coon, opening his mouth.

"No, I mean mosquito bites," said Mister Snip Snap. "The bunny girl couldn't stand still while she was getting measured and that's why her dress was crooked."

"Oh, we'll stand still, all right," said Cobby Coon. "We'd just love to have nice new suits with white collars and big bowties." "Everything, wouldn't we, Coon?"

"That's the talk," said Mister Coon in a pleased voice. "I thought you boys would come to your senses. Only an hour ago you said you didn't want new suits because the boys at school would make fun of you. But I guess you see now how nice it would be to have some new clothes."

Mister Snip Snap went with Mister Snip Snap to pick out the kind of cloth he wanted to have the suits made out of, and Nick measured the little Coon boys all over for their new suits.

"May we go and play now, Uncle Ring?" they asked when they were all through with everything and were on their way home.

"Yes, indeed, you may, boys," said their uncle. "You've been very good and now you may go wherever you like."

Off they went to the corn-field. "Bet I can hold more'n you," said Cobby.

"Bet you can't," said Coon. And they both began to stuff on the juicy grass.

That night they didn't want any supper.

"Are you sick, boys?" asked Mister Coon anxiously.

"No, we're dying," said Cobby. "We think we'll look better in our new suits if we're a little thinner. That's what you said when you got your last new suit."

"Why, bless your hearts. So I did," laughed Mister Coon. "But that's different. I'm old and I need to diet, but you're young. Come on and eat now like good boys."

But nary a bite did they touch. (To Be Continued)

The Tangle

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

Well, here we are back home again. It doesn't seem like home to me, Leslie, without you here. I haven't been able to get hold of Jack and I may as well tell you that there's a pretty kettle of fish at your apartment. That Bradford woman has kicked up the usual fuss. Your cook has left and if Sarah hadn't been with you so long, I am sure she would do so also.

Mrs. Prescott tells me her son is so busy he has not been home for a week except to sleep, coming in very late at night and leaving very early in the morning. Sarah tells me privately that he hasn't been home at all, but has contented himself with calling up to find out about little Jack. Miss Anderson visited me at the shop today, and told me that even she could not stand it much longer.

Last night Walter and I dined at the Little Club, and over in one corner we saw Sally Atherton and Jack. Now, dear, I don't think there is one solitary bit of harm in Jack's attention to that woman. He's very lonely, and what a lonely man will do, is not to be conceived in the mind of woman.

Mrs. Atherton said Walter and me first, and said something to Jack. I knew he was embarrassed, but she seemed to be as cool as ever. I think she told him to invite us over to their table, for rather reluctantly, he came over and after greeting Walter, whom he had not seen since we got here, he asked us to come over and eat with them.

I asked Jack when you were coming home, and he said he did not think you were coming for quite a while, that he was going to take the baby down to you as soon as his business would let him. It was then that Sally Atherton said a most peculiar thing.

"Why didn't you tell me, Mr. Prescott, that you wanted to get away?" she said. "I'm sure I could manage perfectly well. If Leslie wants to see her boy, she ought to have him immediately. Why don't you go tomorrow?"

It seemed to me Jack was sorry he had spoken, for he evaded answering her, but all through the dinner she kept referring to it, and finally she said to me:

"Isn't it possible for you to persuade Mr. Prescott that I can take care of his business?"

Jack seemed very much annoyed, and grew very sulky. That did not worry her, however. She wouldn't let him alone until he had promised to start to go tomorrow.

Later, in the dressing room, she said: "I think Mr. Prescott should take the baby to his wife, and bring them all back here as soon as possible. His mother and some old maid friend of hers have absolutely turned his house into chaos, and he is not staying home at all."

"You probably know Mr. Prescott better than I, Mrs. Burke, and you probably know that for all his cry of business he is not, or rather he cannot attend to it when his mind is all shot to pieces by that exigent mother of his."

Do you know, Leslie dear, I rather liked the girl. For the first time in my life I think I understood her, and yet I fear her. She is absolutely a law unto herself, always—I can see that.

Jack will probably be with you by the time you get this letter. Why don't you come back with him. I want to see you.

GOLD SPOONS FOR MUSH

By Albert Apple

Ninety-five out of every 100 children in American public schools will have to work with their hands for a living after they leave school and strike out for themselves.

So claims A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Macca-bees. His figures obviously are approximately correct.

Ninety-five per cent will work with their hands. Yet about 95 per cent of their education is brain training rather than hand training. Providing gold spoons for eating mush.

The man who makes his living with his hands certainly needs all the brain training he can get. With his brain developed and alert, he will advance more quickly. It is brain power, not muscles, that makes an occasional iron puddler rise to be head of a big steel company. It was brain training that made Abe Lincoln the rail-splitter into President Lincoln.

Yes, the man who makes his living with his hands, needs all the brain training he can get.

He needs it not only in his work, but for individual improvement in spare time. With a trained brain he will not submit ignorantly to industrial slavery. And he will recognize the wisdom of giving his children "a better start in life."

Despite all this, our educational system spends too much time developing the brain and too little time training "the hands." Theoretically, the boy who gets his brain educated in school, will have plenty of time to learn how to make money with his hands after he leaves school.

But the seemingly perpetual tendency of educators at large is to cram brains with as much impractical knowledge as possible. By impractical knowledge, we mean knowledge that can never be converted into cash.

All this is idealistic, and we have to have idealism in life, but the world is very matter-of-fact, after all. Children would be a lot better off, for instance, if they got less history or botany and more of the fundamentals of economics—reasons why cost of living is so high and hard to meet—reasons why 95 per cent of children have to work with their hands after they leave school.

If we used more tin spoons instead of gold, there figuratively would be less mush and more ice cream to be eaten.

Practical training first; impractical knowledge second! At least, until we catch up with and solve some of the economic problems, created by too much teaching of the useless.

FABLES ON HEALTH

AVOIDING COLDS

"Get used to temperately heated rooms," advised the Jones family doctor when Mr. Jones consulted him on avoiding colds.

"Try to wear loose, porous clothing. Heavy wraps and fur coats should be worn only during unusual exposure, such as is encountered when out automobilizing."

"Outer garments should be adapted to the changes of weather and medium-weight underclothing worn."

"Office workers and all persons employed indoors spend the greater part of the day at summer temperature and too heavy underclothing, under such circumstances, impairs the resistance powers."

"It is better to have heavy outer garments, so that when the warm indoors place has been left behind, the more rigorous temperature can be faced."

"In ordinary offices or homes the temperature should not be allowed to rise above 68 degrees."

DAWES TO BE REAL STORM CENTER OF G. O. P. FIGHT

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Sept. 8.—Evidence is accumulating that the storm-center of the Republican campaign will be Charles G. Dawes, G. O. P. vice presidential nominee.

Dawes is destined to be painted as a political Jekyll-Hyde, a dual personality, alternately a hard-anails capitalist and disciplinarian and a pensive, dreaming sentimentalist.

Democrats already have been able to capitalize the "hard-boiled" Dawes, he of "Hell-and-Maria" fame and of strong explosives. Also, they claim to have found a definite reaction against Dawes' over-pressed pipe, citing the instance at Portland, Maine, where lithographs of Dawes, pipe in mouth, were withdrawn following protests by local W. C. T. U. leaders.

As a result of this line of attack on their vice presidential candidate, Republican publicity is engaged in presenting the other Dawes, the one which is less spectacular and volucious, but which they claim is the Dawes that would be in the ascendant in high office.

This Dawes is a cultured, aesthetic gentleman, a patron of the arts, himself a musician and composer; a humanitarian who establishes refuge homes where hungry, jobless men can find shelter and warmth. To back up this picture of Dawes, his "Melody in A Major," perhaps his most tuneful composition, has been produced on phonograph records and is slated for extensive distribution. G. O. P. headquarters cites that a Chicago violinist, touring Europe, has included the Dawes composition in his repertoire and is making it the hit of his concerts.

While Republicans are emphasizing more and more the Dawes of culture, the musician and composer and philanthropist, the Democrats continue hammering away on Dawes as a "hard-boiled egg" who points his periods with profanity, chews up pipe stems, slams the desk when he talks and raises "Hell-and-Maria" general.

It is from these two widely divergent pictures that the public at large must make up its estimate of Coolidge's running mate. Republicans are hopeful, however, that even the Democratic likeness will be helpful in lining up the votes of red-blooded, vigorous voters, while the distant Dawes, the musician and dreamer, are counted on to win for him the ballots of the less strenuously emphatic.

Possibly never before did the second and third men on the presidential tickets get, by comparison as great a part of the campaign publicity as they are getting this year. Just as Dawes is made the target of the Coolidge opposition, so Bryan gets more bricks from the Republican than Davis, and Wheeler from his Independent chief, La Follette.

CAMPING OUT

(Florence Borne)

Out where the trees stand huge and tall,
Out where the lake ripples in the sun,
There is the place where I'm going to go,
When my vacation time has come,
Get me a rod, and a hook and line,
Seems as if I could almost shout,
When I think what a fine, old time,
I will have when I'm camping out.

Out where the bull frog sings his song,
"Chunky ker chunk," all the livelong night,
Out where the wind is a-roaming free,
And the moon shines down in her silver light;
There is the place I am longing to be,
And, so would you, I have no doubt,
If you could know what a thing life is,
When you are simply camping out.

Up in the morning before the sun,
Take a dip in the rippling lake.
My, how you shiver, but, ain't it fun,
Helps to get you plumb wide awake;
Then, when your vacation time has come,
Hustle and bustle, you're back on shore,
Make you a fire on the sandy beach,
Cooking your breakfast, (enough for ten).

Fish for your breakfast fresh from the lake,
Coffee a-boiling on the red hot coals,
Send up an aroma to tempt the Gods,
Making them wish they had mortal souls;
Seems that it is a crime to stay out to you,
Here in the city when Spring's about,
Bluebird and robin a-seeming to say:
"Why in the world ain't you camping out?"

CORWIN TAKES ON MAXWELL IN BISMARCK

Southwest Quarter of North Dakota Given Dealer on Popular Car

The Corwin Motor Company, pioneer automobile dealers of Bismarck, have announced their connection with the Maxwell Motor Company, as distributors for the southwest quarter of North Dakota. The new 1925 Maxwell models, seen for the first time here, are the result of four years continuous effort on the part of Walter P. Chrysler and the same force of engineers that built the wonderful Chrysler Six. The remarkable performance of the Chrysler is now common talk the country over. The new Maxwell will cause just as much surprise in the four cylinder class, as its sister car did amongst the sixes. Representatives from the Maxwell factory are now at the Corwin Motor Company showroom, explaining the new features of the Maxwell to Bismarck people. This demonstration will continue until Wednesday evening. Large crowds have attended the past two days. In connection with the factory exhibit, the local dealers have brought the "Talking Maxwell" to Bismarck to entertain the public during the show. This car actually talks, sings, lights its own lights, blows the horn and does many other seemingly impossible feats. It is a free exhibition and everyone is invited to see it on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Physician Dies From Heart Failure

Van Hook, Sept. 8.—Dr. William Oliver McFall, 74, dropped dead in a pool hall at Marshall, the cause of death being heart failure. He had practiced medicine since 1876, for a number of years being a surgeon with the U. S. navy, during which time he visited most of the nations of the world. After leaving the navy, he practiced medicine at Fremont, Iowa, and at Minot. Fond of travel, he is said to have visited every state in the union. His wife, and a daughter living at Marshall, survive him.

"Well, sir, this Tanlac medicine comes nearer making young folks out of old ones than anything I have ever heard of. "Before taking Tanlac I was having a mighty bad time with indigestion. At times I could not keep anything down and my nerves were also in a bad way. I couldn't sleep well, had frequent dizzy spells and, in fact, my health just seemed to be on a general decline. "Since taking Tanlac my health is excellent, especially for one of my age. CORWIN TAKES ON MAXWELL IN BISMARCK

The Corwin Motor Company, pioneer automobile dealers of Bismarck, have announced their connection with the Maxwell Motor Company, as distributors for the southwest quarter of North Dakota. The new 1925 Maxwell models, seen now for the first time, are the result of four years continuous effort on the part of Walter P. Chrysler and the same force of engineers that built the wonderful Chrysler Six. The remarkable performance of the Chrysler is now common talk the country over. The new Maxwell will cause just as much surprise in the four cylinder class, as its sister car did amongst the sixes.

Representatives from the Maxwell factory are now at the Corwin Motor Company showroom, explaining the new features of the Maxwell to Bismarck people. This demonstration will continue until Wednesday evening. Large crowds have attended the past two days.

In connection with the factory exhibit, the local dealers have brought the "Talking Maxwell" to Bismarck to entertain the public during the show. This car actually talks, sings, lights its own lights, blows the horn and does many other seemingly impossible feats. It is a free exhibition and everyone is invited to see it on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

After leaving the navy, he practiced medicine at Freemont, Iowa, and at Minot. Fond of travel, he is said to have visited every state in the union. His wife, and a daughter living at Parshall, survive him.

Retired Farmer Declares That Tanlac Not Only Restored His Health But Gave Him New Energy.

"Well, sir, this Tanlac medicine comes nearer making young folks out of old ones than anything I have ever heard of. I have gained 32 lbs. on five bottles and while I am 78 I don't feel my age a good many years," is the striking statement of Andrew M. Loucke, well known retired farmer of Stewardsville, Minn.

"Before taking Tanlac I was having a mighty bad time with indigestion. At times I could not keep anything down and my nerves were also in a bad way. I couldn't sleep well, had frequent dizzy spells and, in fact, my health just seemed to be on a general decline.

"Since taking Tanlac my health is excellent, especially for one of my age. In fact I am so built up and invigorated that I feel like I could get out on the farm and do a big day's work again."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER (Established 1873)

THE REACTIONARY PROPOSAL

President Coolidge, usually calm and impassive, can strike out forcefully in defense of a principle or in the advocacy of a cause he believes is right. In an even-tempered, common sense manner, which he deems so important in the conduct of government, the President did this in his Baltimore speech on the Constitution and the Supreme Court.

The proposals to abridge the powers of the court and destroy the Constitution are not new, but they are being emphasized more than ever in the LaFollette campaign. The proposals are called "progressive." President Coolidge very properly labels them "reactionary" and he proves his statement.

If there is no law there is anarchy. If there is no protection for the weak, for the minority, there is no justice. The Constitution of the United States was devised by men who had struggled for liberty; their intent was to preserve, and not to destroy, liberty. As the President said:

"Some people do not seem to understand fully the purpose of our constitutional restraints. They are protecting the majority either in or out of the Congress. They can protect themselves with their votes. No one has adopted a written Constitution in order that the minority, even down to the most insignificant individual, might have their rights protected. So long as our Constitution remains in force, no majority, no matter how large, can deprive the individual of the right of life, liberty and property, or prohibit the free exercise of religion or the freedom of speech or of the press."

The interpretation of this basic document was placed in the hands of a high court by the founders of the Republic. There is now the proposal that the interpretation be placed in the hands of the majority in Congress, which in itself is a denial of the rights to the minority the Constitution guarantees. It is notable, as the President points out, that Congress, even when sitting in a judicial capacity as it has in deciding many cases, is inclined to a decision on partisan grounds, or upon what it may believe for the moment is the popular course. No more certain course for the breaking down of stability in government could be adopted than to break down the powers of the supreme court and the scope of the Constitution.

There are those who assault the supreme court as tyrannical, in the exercise of its duties of interpreting the Constitution. On this point Mr. Coolidge said:

"It is frequently charged that this tribunal is tyrannical. If the Constitution of the United States is tyrannical, if the rule that no one shall be convicted of a crime save by a jury of his peers; that no orders of nobility shall be granted; that slavery shall not be permitted to exist in any state or territory; that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; if these and many other provisions made by the people be tyrannical, then the supreme court when it makes decisions in accordance with these principles of our fundamental law is tyrannical; otherwise it is exercising the power of government for the preservation of liberty."

The Constitution has raised certain barriers against hasty change. The change may come, deliberately and at the hands of the people. Stability of government, orderly processes, are provided, yet provision is made in the Constitution for such changes as the people desire by amendment. History is replete with the disasters which have occasioned efforts to make great fundamental changes overnight. War and revolution have had such an object, the same object which is behind the present attack upon the Constitution and the high court. This is not progress, but reaction. Mr. Coolidge said:

"At a time when all the world is seeking for the adjudication of differences between nations, not by war, but by reason, the suggestion that we should limit the jurisdiction of our domestic courts is reactionary in the highest degree. It would cast aside the progress of generations to begin again the contest for supremacy between executive and legislative. Whichever side has won in that struggle, the people have always lost."

Doubtless many of those who are behind the present attack are sincere. But it is equally true that many are insincere. A direct assault upon individual freedom could not succeed. That autocracy necessary to a revolution to a communistic or socialistic form of government cannot be attained under the present bulwark of the Constitution. There is real danger in these indirect attacks which may blind the people for the moment. The President was not crying "wolf" when he told the people in Baltimore that the time has come "for Americans to range themselves firmly, squarely and uncompromisingly behind American ideals."

DEATH

There is no death—only a change. All religions agree on this. And millions believe that the "life spark" itself does not perish—that it merely passes into some other manifestation of life, the same as electric current flows through wires.

How long can the life germ, or whatever you care to call it, survive? Wheat, found in the shriveled hands of an ancient Egyptian mummy, has been planted in modern times and sprouted into maturity after its thousands of years of sleep. And now, in Ottawa, Canada, they find a live clam that had been buried in solid masonry of a house foundation for 30 years. Dug out and placed in water, it "came to life." There is no death—only a sleep, a change.

THIEVES

Today's dream is tomorrow's accomplishment—just as surely now as when men first dreamed of flying with artificial wings.

A big scientific dream is transmission of electric power by radio. Collecting payment from consumers would be difficult, next to impossible. The cost will have to be paid by government from tax funds. One instance of many, that we are headed toward a socialistic condition whether we approve or not.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A PARTY?

(Grand Forks Herald)

The general theory of party government is that a political party is an organization of citizens who have a bond of union in common beliefs and purposes in matters of government. It is neither essential nor possible that all the members of a party shall think alike on all subjects, but if the party is really what it purports to be its members must be in harmony on those principles and policies which are held to be basic. They must be agreed on the main issues.

As party organization has developed there has been evolved certain machinery by means of which the sentiments and the will of the party may be crystallized, ascertained and formulated. It is manifestly impossible for all the members of a great national party to meet and discuss the issues which interest them, and in lieu of that a representative method has been devised. Sometimes through a series of conventions, and sometimes by the direct vote of party members, delegates to a national convention are elected. These delegates in the aggregate represent the entire membership of the party, and their decisions are taken to represent the will of the party itself. In pursuance of this plan, which is followed wherever the party system is known, the Republicans of the United States elected delegates to represent them at a national convention held in Cleveland in June.

That convention, by a vote which was almost unanimous, adopted a declaration of principles setting forth the policy of the party on what were regarded as the important issues of the day, and nominated candidates for president and vice president to be supported at the coming election. The platform there adopted is the platform of the Republican party. The candidates there nominated are its candidates. There are no others. The party followed the only method that exists of determining its attitude on both platform and candidates, and this is the result.

Any member of the party is privileged to dissent from the decisions thus recorded as to either platform or candidates. He is privileged to support the policy and the candidates of any other party, or to organize a party of his own which will represent his views. But his dissent necessarily severs his relationship with the Republican party. If in the development of local politics, he has been placed on the Republican ticket as a candidate for office, or if he holds a position as local or state committeeman, reason and honor demand that he resign. He is perfectly free, without criticism, to accept a nomination or an official position in the organization of another party, but he cannot rightfully continue a relationship that is false on its face. The man who cannot support the national candidates of the Republican party and subscribe in the main to its platform cannot honestly hold an official position in the Republican party.

Many appear to confuse party membership with citizenship. Citizenship is a permanent thing, into which many are born, and which others assume as a lifetime privilege and obligation. Men may hold divergent views on almost every conceivable subject, but they can all be good citizens. But party membership is voluntary, and is based on the similarity of opinion of members on important subjects. If there is no similarity the party is a sham. The individual may change his opinions. If his party does not change likewise, he is out of step, and it is his business to seek more congenial surroundings. The party itself may change, while the individual remains steadfast. Nevertheless the individual is still out of step with his party, and he cannot honorably remain in it.

These plain considerations of political honor are utterly ignored by certain candidates who have been officially chosen as candidates of the Republican party in this state, and by others who have been elected to official positions in the party organization. The complications are due to the inadequacy of our election laws, but men rightly constituted would not seek to take advantage of them.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

MISTER COON GIVES AN ORDER "Hello, Mister Coon," said Nick. "I'm ever so glad to see you." Mister Ringtail Coon stepped into the shop of "Nancy, Nick & Company," followed by his two nephews, Cobby Coon and Cobby Coon, who had come to spend the fall and winter with their uncle and go to the Meadow Grove School. "Hello," said Nick. "I came to see if you had any suits that would fit these little rascals. And if you haven't any that will fit, can you make them come to fit? I want my nephews to look as nice as possible."

"Certainly," said Nick politely. Mister Snip Snap, the fairman, came in then and said that they had some lovely things and that if Mister Coon would just step to the back of the store he would show them to him.

"You take the measure of Mister Cobby and Mister Cobby, Nick," he said, "and be sure you don't make any mistakes. Don't get everything crooked like Nancy did when she made a dress for little Miss Bunn."

By the way, the boys were glad to have any of the boys' suits.

THE BISMARCK TRIBUNE

"Sh - h - h!"

Mister Snip Snap suddenly. "This kind," grinned Cobby, opening his mouth.

"No, I mean mosquito bites," said Mister Snip Snap. "The bunny girl couldn't stand still while she was getting measured and that's why her dress was crooked."

"Oh, we'll stand still, all right," said Cobby Coon. "We'd just love to have nice new suits with white collars and big bowties."

"That's the talk," said Mister Coon in a pleased voice. "I thought you boys would come to your senses. Only an hour ago you said you didn't want new suits because the boys at school would make fun of you. But I guess you see now how nice it would be to have some new clothes."

Mister Coon went with Mister Snip Snap to pick out the kind of cloth he wanted to have the suits made out of, and Nick measured the little coon boys all over for their new suits.

"May we go and play now, Uncle Ring?" they asked when they were all through with everything and were on their way home.

"Yes, indeed, you may, boys," said their uncle. "You've been very good and now you may go wherever you like."

Off they went to the corn-field. "But I can hold more'n you," said Cobby.

"Bet you can't," said Cobby. And they both began to stuff on the juicy grains.

That night they didn't want any supper.

"Are you sick, boys?" asked Mister Coon anxiously.

"No, we're dieting," said Cobby. "We think we'll look better in our new suits if we're a little thinner."

That's what you said when you got your last new suit."

"Why, bless your hearts. So I did," laughed Mister Coon. "But that's different. I'm old and I need to diet, but you're young. Come on and eat now like good boys."

But nary a bite did they touch. (To Be Continued) (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

Well, here we are back home again. It doesn't seem like home to me, Leslie, without you here. I haven't been able to get on my feet, and I may as well tell you that there's a pretty kettle of fish at your apartment. That Bradford woman has kicked up the usual fuss. Your cook has left and if Sarah hadn't been with you so long, I am sure she would do so also.

Mrs. Prescott tells me her son is so busy he has not been home for a week except to sleep, coming in very late at night and leaving very early in the morning. Sarah tells me privately that he hasn't been home at all, but has contented himself with calling up to find out about little Jack. Miss Anderson visited me at the shop today, and told me that even she could not stand it much longer.

Last night Walter and I dined at the Little Club, and when we got home we saw Sally Atherton and Jack New. I don't think there is any solitary bit of harm in Jack's attention to that woman. He's very lonely, and what a lonely man will do, is not to be conceived in the mind of woman.

Mrs. Atherton spied Walter and me first, and said something to Jack. I knew he was embarrassed, but she seemed to be as calm as ever. I think she told him to invite us over to their table, for rather reluctantly, he came over and after greeting Walter, whom he had not seen since we got here, he asked us to come over and eat with them.

I asked Jack when you were coming home, and he said he did not think you were coming for quite a while, that he was going to take the baby down to you as soon as his business would let him. It was then that Sally Atherton said a most peculiar thing.

"Why didn't you tell me, Mr. Prescott, that you wanted to get away?" she said. "I'm sure I could manage perfectly well. If Leslie wants to see her boy, she ought to have him immediately. Why don't you go tomorrow?"

It seemed to me Jack was sorry he had spoken, for he evaded answering her, but all through the dinner she kept referring to it, and finally, she said to me: "Isn't it possible for you to persuade Mr. Prescott that I can take care of his business?"

Jack seemed very much annoyed, and grew very sulky. That did not worry her, however. She wouldn't let him alone until he had promised to start to you tomorrow.

Later, in the dressing room, she said: "I think Mr. Prescott should take the baby to his wife, and bring them all back here as soon as possible. His mother and some old maid friend of hers have absolutely turned his house into chaos, and he is not staying home at all."

"You probably know Mr. Prescott better than I, Mrs. Burke, and you probably know that for all his cry of business he is not, or rather cannot attend to it when his mind is all shot to pieces by that exigent mother of his."

Do you know, Leslie dear, I rather liked the girl. For the first time in my life I think I understood her, and yet I fear her. She is absolutely a law unto herself, always—I can see that.

Jack will probably be with you by the time you get this letter. Why don't you come back with him. I want to see you.

RUTH. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

Out where the trees stand huge and tall, Out where the lake ripples in the sun. There is the place where I'm going to go. When my vacation time has come, Get me a rod, and a hook and line. Seem as if I could almost shout, When I think what a fine, old time, I will have when I'm camping out.

Out where the bull frog sings his song, "Chunky ker chunk," all the livelong night. Out where the wind is a-roaming free, And the moon shines down in her soft light: There is the place I am longing to be. And, would you, I have no doubt, If you could know what a thing life is, When you are simply camping out.

GOLD SPOONS FOR MUSH

By Albert Apple

Ninety-five out of every 100 children in American public schools will have to work with their hands for a living after they leave school and strike out for themselves. So claims A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Macca-bees. His figures obviously are approximately correct. Ninety-five per cent will work with their hands. Yet about 95 per cent of their education is brain training rather than hand training. Providing gold spoons for eating mush.

The man who makes his living with his hands certainly needs all the brain training he can get. With his brain developed and alert, he will advance more quickly. It is brain power, not muscles, that makes an occasional iron puddler rise to be head of a big steel company. It was brain training that made Abe Lincoln the rail-splitter into President Lincoln.

Yes, the man who makes his living with his hands, needs all the brain training he can get.

He needs it not only in his work, but for individual improvement in spare time. With a trained brain he will not submit ignorantly to industrial slavery. And he will recognize the wisdom of giving his children "a better start in life."

Despite all this, our educational system spends too much time developing the brain and too little time training "the hands." Theoretically, the boy who gets his brain educated in school, will have plenty of time to learn how to make money with his hands after he leaves school.

But the seemingly perpetual tendency of educators at large is to cram brains with as much impractical knowledge as possible. By impractical knowledge, we mean knowledge that can never be converted into cash.

All this is idealistic, and we have to have idealism in life, but the world is very matter-of-fact, after all. Children would be a lot better off, for instance, if they got less history or botany and more of the fundamentals of economics—reasons why cost of living is so high and hard to meet—reasons why 95 per cent of children have to work with their hands after they leave school.

If we used more tin spoons instead of gold, there figuratively would be less mush and more ice cream to be eaten.

Practical training first; impractical knowledge second! At least, until we catch up with and solve some of the economic problems, created by too much teaching of the useless.

FABLES ON HEALTH AVOIDING COLDS

"Get used to temperately heated rooms," advised the Jones family doctor when Mr. Jones consulted him on avoiding colds.

"Try to wear loose, porous clothing. Heavy wraps and fur coats should be worn only during unusual exposure, such as is encountered when out automobilizing."

"Outer garments should be adapted to the changes of weather and medium-weight underclothing worn."

"Office workers and all persons employed indoors spend the greater part of the day at summer temperature and too heavy underclothing, under such circumstances, impairs the resistance powers."

"It is better to have heavy outer-garments, so that when the warm indoors place has been left behind, the more rigorous temperature can be faced."

"In ordinary offices or homes the temperature should not be allowed to rise above 68 degrees."

DAWES TO BE REAL STORM CENTER OF G. O. P. FIGHT

BY HARRY B. HUNT NEA Service Writer

Washington, Sept. 8.—Evidence is accumulating that the storm-center of the Republican campaign will be Charles G. Dawes, G. O. P. vice presidential nominee.

Dawes is destined to be painted as a political Jekyll-Hyde, a dual personality, alternately a hard-nosed capitalist and disciplinarian and a pensive, dreaming sentimentalist.

Democrats already have been able to capitalize the "hard-boiled" Dawes, he of "Hell-and-Marina" fame and of strong expletives. Also, they claim to have found a definite reaction against Dawes' over-pressed pipe, citing the instance at Portland, Maine, where lithographs of Dawes, pipe in mouth, were withdrawn following protests by local W. C. T. U. leaders.

As a result of this line of attack on their vice presidential candidate, Republican publicity is engaged in preventing the other Dawes, the one which is less spectacular and vociferous, but which they claim is the Dawes that would be in the ascendancy in high office.

This Dawes is a cultured, aesthetic gentleman, a patron of the arts, himself a musician and composer; a humanitarian who establishes refuge homes where hungry, jobless men can find shelter and warmth.

To back up this picture of Dawes, his "Melody in A Major" perhaps his most successful composition, has been produced on phonograph records and is slated for extensive distribution.

G. O. P. headquarters cites that a Chicago violinist, touring Europe, has included the Dawes composition in his repertoire and is making it the hit of his concerts.

Possibly never before did the second-place men on the presidential tickets get, by comparison, as great a part of the campaign publicity as they are getting this year.

Just as Dawes is made the target of the Coolidge opposition, so Bryan gets more brickbats from the Republicans than Davis, and Wheeler draws the fire of both old parties from his independent chief, La Follette.

Sam Crabbe Tells of Plan of Corporation

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 8.—The buying of sheep is holding the interest of the farmers in the state, according to Sam Crabbe of Fargo, who is in charge of the sheep department of the Agricultural Credit corporation. Mr. Crabbe was in the city Saturday conferring with farmers, livestock men, bankers and business men relative to the work the corporation expects to accomplish in this county this month. The corporation was organized by private capital with a surplus of $100,000,000 which will be used in the northwest in placing livestock on the farms.

"It is expected that a great part of the money will be spent in North Dakota to place livestock on the farms. It is hoped that flocks of 50 to 100 sheep may be placed on farms of all farmers who wish to have them in the state within this month," Mr. Crabbe said. "It is necessary that the time for making applications be closed October 1, as it is necessary to bring the sheep from Montana and October is considered the best month in which to do this work," Mr. Crabbe said. The sheep are to be of the Merino or white faced type.

"Sheep may be raised at a profit for it is not necessary to have any special equipment or buildings for them," Mr. Crabbe pointed out. "The plan is to loan the money to the purchasers of sheep at 6 per cent interest which may be paid for in a period of three years, 30 per cent the first year, the same amount the second year and the remaining 40 per cent the third year.

not the Chekiang forces to cut the railway in the rear of the Kiangsu forces attacking Shanghai.

If this move can be carried out, the Chekiang general plan to attack the Kiangsu troops simultaneously on two sides—on the west from Hangchow and on the east from Hwangtu, a present point of battle contact on the railway.

Move Troops
The campaign, however, is still somewhat in the future. On the basis of reports from the campaign, west of Taihu today, Pak Loh, secretary to Ho Feng-Lin, defense commissioner of Shanghai, predicted the capture of Hing, about a dozen miles north of the Kiangsu border, either today or tomorrow.

Three thousand men were sent today to the Lihse sector to reinforce the Chekiang troops fighting there. This was to counteract the reinforcements that the Kiangsu commanders are known to have sent to that front from Quinsan, through the waterways they control.

MANDAN NEWS

WESTERN MOVIE PLANNED
Bon Bird, rancher of Almont, typical westerner of the "wild open spaces" as conceived by the movie scenario writers and who has been in Mandan the last week with a string of running ponies entered at the Missouri Slope fair, has been engaged to play the role of "chief scout" in the "Price of the Prairie," a western pioneer movie drama which will be shot this month on the Standing Rock Reservation by the Essanay Co.

Charlie McLaughlin, son of the late Major McLaughlin, has been engaged as chief interpreter in handling some 750 or 800 old time Indians and younger warriors who will act in the play. The whole reservation country is agog with excitement over the breaking in the movies.

One local relic has been commandeered for use in the movie—the historic "Mandan-Deadwood stage-coach."

LEAVES FOR COLLEGES
Following a summer of debate as to the vocation or profession which they will choose for their life work, the majority of the young folks of Mandan who will see training at higher institutions of learning will leave during the week next fortnight for the universities of their choice. While many plan to enter the State university or college, others of the class of 1924 will spend the winter at home or will reach in the rural schools. Among those who will en-mit the Chekiang forces to cut the railway in the rear of the Kiangsu forces attacking Shanghai.

If this move can be carried out, the Chekiang generals plan to attack the Kiangsu troops simultaneously on two sides—the west from Changshou and on the east from Hwangtu, a present point of battle contact on the railway.

Move Troops. The campaign, however, is still somewhat in the future. On the basis of reports from the campaign, west of Taihu today, Psk Loh, secretary to Ho Feng-Lin, defense commissioner of Shanghai, predicted the capture of Hing, about a dozen miles north of the Kiangsu border, either today or tomorrow.

Three thousand men were sent today to the Lishu sector to reinforce the Chekiang troops fighting there. This was to counteract the reinforcements that the Kiangsu commanders are known to have sent to that front from Quinsan, through the waterways they control.

MANDAN NEWS

WESTERN MOVIE PLANNED
Ben Bird, rancher of Almont, typical westerner of the "wild open spaces" as conceived by the movie scenario writers and who has been in Mandan the last week with a string of running ponies entered at the Missouri Slope fair, has been engaged to play the role of "chief scout" in the "Price of the Prairie," a Western pioneer movie drama which will be shot this month on the Standing Rock reservation by the Essanay Co.

Charlie McLaughlin, son of the late Major McLaughlin, has been engaged as chief interpreter in handling some 750 or 800 old time Indians and younger warriors who will act in the play. The whole reservation is agog with excitement over the breaking into the movies.

One local relic has been commandeered for use in the movie—the historic "Mandan-Deadwood stagecoach."

LEAVES FOR COLLEGES
Following a summer of debate as to the vocation or profession which they will choose for their life work, the majority of the young folks of Mandan who will seek training at higher institutions of learning will leave during the week or fortnight for the institutions of their choice. While many plan to enter the State university or college, others of the class of 1924 will spend the winter at home or will teach in the rural schools. Among those who will go away to school are Wylie Nelson and

William Arthur, University of North Dakota; William McCormick, Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind. Henry Zahn and Miss Lillie Christenson both were awarded four year scholarships for high averages and will enter Jamestown College. Helen Taylor will take a course at the Moorhead Normal School; Irene Schulte, St. Theresa College, Winona, Minn.; Ora Roderick, University of Minnesota; Hospital, nurses training course; Miss Dorothy Crum is in training at the Bismarck Hospital. Among those who teach this year are Harriett Burdick, Minnie Hendrickson and Elizabeth Gress.

Department of Agriculture recently introduced a new shrub called Kolkwitzia.

In the Americans, both the leading Washington team and the Yankees lost. Ferguson turned Washington back, 6 to 2, at Washington, while Remondell held New York and Philadelphia won, 2 to 1. Joe Hauser of Philadelphia made his 25th home run.

Long Motor Route Proposed

The Interstate Transportation Company, operating motor bus lines, has petitioned the railroad commission for authority to establish a Grand Forks, N. D.—Aberdeen, S. D. service. The length of the run would be 225 miles, to be made probably in 11 to 12 hours. The line would pass through Mayville, Cooperstown, Valley City, Oakes and Ellendale, and would be started in the present month. It would connect with the present Grand Forks-Carrington line.

SPORTSMEN TO FIND GAME IN N. D. PLENTIFUL

Game and Fish Commissioner Says Supply of Prairie Chickens Is Good

MANY YOUNG DUCKS

Cando, N. D., Sept. 8.—North Dakota hunters will find plenty of game when they take the field after the prairie chicken and duck hunting season opens September 16, according to E. T. Judd, game and fish commissioner.

Unlike other years, however, many of the late broods of ducks will be found in the "flapper stage" on September 16 and will be unfit for eating for sometime, the game and fish commissioner says.

"From every part of the state come reports of a big crop of prairie chickens, both the Pinnated and the Sharp Tail Grouse," says Mr. Judd. "These reports have been confirmed in a large measure from personal observation over a goodly part of the state. I have come to the conclusion, however, that many of the early hatched coveys will be found to contain only a few birds, perhaps about 50 percent of what is to be expected. The later hatched will be found to have about the normal number of birds."

A new development is that the Pinnated Grouse, sometimes called the yellow-legged chicken, is extending its range in the western part of the state, Mr. Judd says.

The Ruffed Grouse or Partridge of the Turtle Lake and Pembina Mountains, in the northern part of the state, wintered well, and no doubt there will be an abundance of these birds in the somewhat limited area in which they now are found, the game and fish commissioner says. The Red River Valley has probably the largest crop of real prairie chicken in its history, Mr. Judd says. "The home crop of our numerous species of the duck family will be found wherever there has been sufficient water," says Mr. Judd. "Unlike other years, however, many of the late broods will be found in the flapper stage on opening day. With the late broods, however, there have been noted that were just out of the nest. They would be unfit for food if killed in that stage, and should not be disturbed."

Reports indicate that the Ringneck or Chinese Pheasant is slowly getting a hold in the state. Mr. Judd adds, "These birds, 'planted' by the game and fish commission, are expected to fill a niche in the North Dakota game life. The Hungarian Partridge turned out by the game and fish body last spring have raised some broods, to the commission's certain knowledge, Mr. Judd says. It is unlawful to shoot them."

STATEMENT

To The Electric Consumers of The City of Bismarck:

In a decision of the Railroad Commissioners, dated July 30, 1924, this company has been ordered to put in effect reduced electric light rates as follows:

Present Rates	Proposed Rates
First 100 KWH.....$.11½	First 25 KWH.....$.09
Next 100 KWH.....$.10½	Next 75 KWH.....$.08
Next 100 KWH.....$.10	Next 150 KWH.....$.07

This company has at all times endeavored, by efficient operation, to give the consumers of Bismarck low rates and satisfactory service. However, these new rates, as announced by the Railroad Commission, are so low that it will be impossible for this company to continue business, give efficient service and make any return on its investment. Believing the citizens of Bismarck are entitled to know the facts and our reasons for appealing to the Federal Court for relief from this decision, we wish at this time to call attention to the following electric rates in effect in this state so that the Bismarck consumers will know our demands are not unreasonable but based only on a desire to be fair to both consumers and ourselves.

BISMARCK	Present Rates	BISMARCK	Proposed Rates
First 100 KWH.....$.11½		First 25 KWH.....$.09
Next 100 KWH.....$.10½		Next 75 KWH.....$.08
Next 100 KWH.....$.10		Next 150 KWH.....$.07
Minot		Fargo
First 50 KWH.....$.12		First 100 KWH.....$.10
Next 100 KWH.....$.11½		Next 200 KWH.....$.08
Next 250 KWH.....$.11		Next 300 KWH.....$.07
Grand Forks		Jamestown
First 50 KWH.....$.12		First 100 KWH.....$.122
Next 100 KWH.....$.11½		Next 100 KWH.....$.10
Next 250 KWH.....$.11		Next 300 KWH.....$.0888

It will be noted the present rates in Bismarck are the lowest in the state with the possible exception of Fargo in some classes, where the consumption is three times our local consumption, and that under the new rates, Bismarck would be from 20% to 40% lower than any other city in the state. It costs as much to produce electricity in Bismarck as in Minot or Jamestown and it cannot be produced and sold at the rates prescribed by the Commission.

The Commission estimates our gross revenues under these new rates at $198,330.86 per annum. It has cost us $97,549.43 to operate our plant the first seven months of 1924. This would make our operating expense of the year 1924 amount to exceed $167,227.58, leaving a net revenue of $31,103.28. A reasonable depreciation on our property, as allowed by the Federal Government for income tax purposes is $25,987, leaving but $5,116.28 for payment of federal taxes and return on our investment, which sum is but slightly in excess of 1% per annum on the valuation placed on our property by the Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Much has been said about the excessive earnings of the Hughes Electric Company in the past. The facts are that for the past five years the dividends paid by this company have not exceeded four per cent annually on the investment.

We believe the electric consumers of Bismarck desire to be fair in this matter and for that reason are giving you this frank statement of our case. We are endeavoring to give you good efficient service and we ask in return that you fairly consider the facts above given, and we believe you will come to the conclusion that our action in fighting this unfair order in Federal Court is entirely justified.
